Benjamin Davis was born on November 29, 1983 and raised in Salt Lake City, Utah. He has mild cerebral palsy. His artistic work began when he was a toddler of three. His father brought home reams of scrap paper from work on which Benjamin used pencil, crayons and toy watercolor sets to create voluminous works of art. He did not let his disabilities prevent him from developing his art talent. He has used art as means of expression.

Benjamin attended Salt Lake City Extension of the Ogden School for the Deaf and Blind for much of his education. He studied in the mainstream art classes offered by Cottonwood High School. He has always been interested in drawing, but through some very talented and encouraging high school teachers, he started to learn how to paint landscape, seascape, and figure. He attended Salt Lake Community College studying art.

Benjamin has shown remarkable ability in any medium including oil, watercolor, acrylics, colored pencil, and charcoal. He also is talented in computer art. He is comfortable with any art style, but under the instruction of one of the best known landscape artists in the West,

Bonnie Posselli, he has begun to make a name for himself as an oil landscape artist. He also paints beautiful portraits.

Benjamin has continued painting after high school and has exhibited in many places. He entered and won a trip to Washington DC to show his art in the VSA International Arts Festival in 2004. Here is a list of his exhibits and shows so far.
